Hello Rebels!

Thank you so much for coming to the Non Violent Direct Action training. It is one of the foundations that you need to be a part of XR and we hope that you found it informative and thought provoking.

As promised, here is a list of all the information mentioned throughout the training, plus some more resources.

We mentioned in the training session that this is a very comprehensive resource; please take your time working through it. Or you can find the element that intrigues you and dive right in.

Know Your Rights This video has been developed by people with a background in the law and related to the new Public Order Act 2023 . It is essential watching for anyone taking part in an action, whether or not they plan to risk arrest. You can watch it in sections and there are links to written resources.

For training reflecting the law in Scotland see SCALP above..

When online Q & A sessions or Legal Briefings are organised, they are usually advertised on XR UK Events page (see link above).

De-escalation training. Non-violence is one of the core principles of XR and being able to de-escalate situations and maintain non-violent protests is essential. Check out the Facebook page for upcoming events or the events page.

Oppression, movement building and our relationship as activists. OMBRA is an online, interactive workshop exploring how movements can be divided when oppression is not addressed. It offers practical tools to heal these divisions when they affect our relationships as activists. See our main event page for more information.

Self-Organising System. In XR we use a Self-Organising Systems approach. It allows us to co-ordinate at any scale in a highly organised way without anyone being in charge. It also allows us to be autonomous while remaining accountable and not taking power over others. It is designed to survive the upheavals of changing circumstances and government intervention. How does SOS work? How are decisions made? Keep an eye on the XR UK Website Events page (see link above) or your regional channels for SOS workshops.

We thank you from the bottom of our hearts for choosing to rebel with us, and we hope to see you on the streets sometime soon.

We wish you well on your rebel journey.

In love and rage
