

Overview

Why community organising?

Community organising is what enables communities to put their ideas into action; it will enable you to shape your local community, and perhaps even the greater society, so that it responds to the needs and desires of the people. It is a way of organising and acting effectively, so that you have a say in how money is spent, can make the most of any grants available, and can even hold politicians to account. Organising effectively as a community and creating lasting change is incredibly empowering – it enables people to find and use their agency, to draw on their courage, and to understand that their views and voices matter.

If we can come together to organise COVID-19 mutual aid projects, why not food, land and housing cooperatives? The climate crisis is real and our communities have to learn to adapt to a world in flux. That will only happen if we learn to work together. This is the moment to do exactly that.

Useful Links

- Imagination aphrodisiacs:
 1. Sundial: The Imagination Sundial
 2. Guide: XR Guide to the Impossible
 - Ideas for a new world:
 1. Stories: 21 stories of Transition
 2. Platform: The Alternative
 - Building the New Economy: Resource Library on starting a Cooperative
 - Reclaiming Your Local Council:
 1. Guide: Transform Your Local Council
 2. Podcast: Peter Macfadyen, former mayor, renegade, legend of local politics
 - Take Direct Action:
 1. Reading list: compiled by the Laboratory of Insurrectionary Imagination
 2. Manual: Earth First! Direct Action Manual
-